Actually, there are two basic ingredients every greedy algorithm has in common:

Greedy Choice Property: from a local optimum we can reach a global optimum, without having to reconsider the decisions already taken.

Optimal Substructure Property: the optimal solution to a problem can be determined from the optimal solutions to its subproblems.